

WESTERDAY six cases of measles developed on board the transport Kilpatrick. They were taken to the Quarantine station at once and are now being given the best of care and medical attendance. Unless something of a serious nature happen, the government vessel will leave on Monday next for Guam and Manila. The people who are on board her are very anxious to get away. Every precaution is being taken by Dr. Cofer to prevent the spread of the measles among the natives. Should it break out here, there is no doubt that the native population would die by the scores. Cholera would not be more fatal than measles, especially among the full-blooded natives. The halfcaste population would also be sorely smitten with it, but not so severely according to former experiences of epidemics. In any event, the breaking out of an epidemic of measles among the inhabitants of these isles would be attended with disastrous results. The careful watch of quarantine officers cannot be over-estimated at this time.

Transports to Coal at Seattle.

SEATTLE, April 9.—Quartermaster General Ludington has requested Maj. Ruhlen to furnish a statement on the coaling facilities of Seattle and other ports on Puget sound, that he may place the matter of obtaining coal for army transports for Manila and alaska on a permanent basis. Heretofore the government has purchased coal for the transports leaving the Sound as it was required. It is intimated that the policy of the department will be to make year contracts for all coal required for the trans

If the war department considers Seattle's advantages it is believed many vessels now sailing from San Francisco with animals and supplies for the Philippines will be sent from Seattle. As the Golden Gate coal supply is largely Washington coal, the San Francisco price is much higher than that in Seattle. Washington coals have been proven to be very partment in 1900, that between 30,000 and 50,000 tons will be required this year for the various transports plying between Seattle and Alaska and Seattle and Manila

THE LITERARY CIRCLE. Paintings of Gaugengigl Will Be Ex hibited With Photographs.

The Literary Circle of the Kilohana Art League "at home" to be given Saturday afternoon, April 27, will be a most interesting and entertaining affair. The paintings of I. M. Gaugengigl will be exhibited.

Mr. Gaugengigl is a painter of genre pictures after the manner of Meissonier and Vibert, and as an artist holds a unique position in the world of art.

Mr. Newcomb will have three paintings by Gaugengigl and a large collection of photographs from his works to illustrate the reading. Edgar Newcomb has come to Hono lulu from Boston after a long and brilliant career as an architect and composer. In the role of lecturer he will not be new to his many friends of a pamphlet containing all of the chap-Honolulu,
